Your next chapter planner

Travel can give you ideas. You don’t need to turn all of them into a new life by Monday. Pick one worth investigating.

Ideas I brought home

Choose a workable focus

The idea I want to explore first

Why it matters to me

Time, money, skills or support it needs

What could get in the way

You can leave the other ideas on the list. Choosing one is a way to start, not a promise to abandon everything else.

Test before making the big leap

A small, low-cost experiment I could try

Milestone	Action	Date

My action this week

Who or what can help

My review date

Review and adjust

What did the experiment show?

What would continuing actually cost in time and money?

My decision: continue, change, pause or leave it

Changing your mind after learning something is useful progress. You don’t need an inspirational slogan to justify it.